

THEATRE

At the Majestic.

Two great photoplay productions are booked for the Majestic theatre next week and they are entirely out of the ordinary and are "Eye for an Eye," with the Russian actress, Nazimova, which comes Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, and "Branding Broadway," the newest William H. Hart subject, which will be seen here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Miss Nazimova in "Eye for an Eye" is going to be a real photoplay sensation at the Majestic for three days, beginning Sunday. Charles Bryant has the leading male role. Albert Capellani, the director, had charge of the filming of the masterpiece, and the entire production is one of rare power and beauty. The Majestic, in addition, will have the usual comedy features and other extras.

Through a fortunate chance the Hart picture is pushed up a week or more in advance, thus giving Rock Island people a glimpse of this fine film masterpiece a long time ahead of the scheduled release date. In it, Mr. Hart assumes a new kind of role as the little would seem to indicate. He is a westerner it is true in the picture, but the circumstances of the story find the hero in New York and on Broadway. How Broadway takes to Hart and Hart to Broadway is all handled very cleverly in this powerful photoplay.

At the Palace.

At the Palace theatre, Melrose, Charlie Chaplin will be shown for the last time tonight. Opening tomorrow morning a vaudeville bill of good quality has been arranged, headed by one of the funniest one-act comedies in vaudeville, "Maggie Taylor, Waitress," from the pen of John Hymer. The story deals with a woman of mature years who through pecuniary obligations to accept a position as a waitress in a hotel formerly owned and managed by her husband. She is especially fond of automobiles, so spends her spare moments at the auto sales room which adjoins the hotel.

"Maggie Taylor, Waitress," in a snappy potpourri of songs and stories, are very capable entertainers and should prove a big hit. The Misses Black and White are young women of athletic tendencies who present an unusually clever offering while they tell their "Novelty Diversion."

Wilson and Van offer entertainment which they are pleased to call "As if I Like It." These two girls, while they please with their song numbers, are artists with violin and piano.

Arion brothers, unrivaled bar comedians, complete the vaudeville portion of the program.

Starting Thursday matinee the Palace announces the coming of a strong musical comedy, "The Bride Shop," one of the best musical comedies to play at popular prices during the current season, and is well worth seeing.

At the Fifth Avenue. All adventures are successful to the adventurous. But this "Successful Adventure" at the Fifth Avenue theatre Monday is especially successful, for at the end of it, like heart's ease after pain, is dear little, sweet little Virginia Houston, a southern beauty, played by another southern beauty, May Allison. The title of "A Successful Adventure" doesn't give half an inkling of the charm and excitement of this brilliant comedy drama. As Virginia Houston, Miss Allison undertakes to lead an old family feud. This she does by means of masquerading as a servant in the household of her own uncle. There she meets mystery, love and danger. There is something about "A Successful Adventure"—and the star as Virginia—that steals into the heart and stays there. Laughter, tears and thrills are all present in this five-act photodrama. A celebrated cast interprets this attractive feature, which contrasts northern and southern locations, and a masked ball at a fashionable country club is among the interesting scenes.

At the Burtis.

"So Long Letty" is a Pacific coast production, and has played long runs in New York, Boston, Chicago and other large cities. It will be seen at the Burtis theatre, Davenport, Monday and Tuesday. Letty was written by Oliver Morosco and Elmer Harris, the music by Earl Carroll. It is different from most musical comedies for the reason that it has a plot. The story it written around a beach where two young married couples reside in the adjoining cars and becoming dissatisfied with domesticity, they propose to swap wives. The fact that work like the limbs of a marionette. She is pretty and magnetic, comical and clever, grotesque and laugh compelling. It is said that there isn't anybody on the stage just like her. Mr. Morosco has surrounded her with a company of exceptionally fine actors and a chorus of stunning girls from California. Mr. Morosco has the reputation of producing nothing but the best and a good evening's entertainment is assured.

At the Spencer.

"The She-Devil," a Theda Bara super-production, in which the star portrays the role of a Spanish siren, opened yesterday at the Spencer square theatre. While melodramatic, the production has a touch of light comedy that differentiates it from the Theda Bara pictures to which we are accustomed.

Miss Bara has gone to the land of Sunny Spain for her story and depicts the character of a coquette in a little lazy village where she is adored and admired by all the men. The play is replete with thrilling incidents and runs the gamut from Spain to blithesome Paris. "The She-Devil" will remain at the Spencer theatre Sunday and Monday.
